PREFACE.

IT has been stated that three brothers by the name of Greele came to this country about 1640, and that they settled in different parts of New England. Careful search of all early records fail to find any mention of but one Greele, named Andrew, and whose descendants are here recorded.

In gathering this material I have examined many county and town records, hundreds of town and county histories, and received over five thousand letters bearing on the subject; and from this mass of material thus gathered, the following compilation has resulted.

In many cases I have written several times to a party and received no reply. This, and the fact that others may have sent incorrect data, may result in errors and omissions, but I have tried to make the records as correct as possible. My thanks are due to all members of the family who have sent me the records asked for. My thanks are also due those who contributed the pictures in the book.

While these records deal entirely with the descendants of Andrew Greele, of Salisbury, I found in my researches that one Thomas Greeley settled at Portsmouth, N. H., about the year 1700, and died in 1724, leaving four sons and two daughters; but there are no records to show that this Thomas was any relation to Andrew or his descendants. Most of the descendants of Thomas settled in Maine, and I collected that genealogy, hoping to connect it with that of Andrew, but as I cannot do so, I omit it from these records. I make this statement, that any of that branch who sent me records will understand why they are not included in this book.

6. BENJAMIN, b. Salisbury, Mass., Dec. 9, 1654.
7. WESTWOOD, b. Salisbury, Mass., Jan. 29, 1659.

Westwood probably died very young. Savage makes no mention of him whatever, and with the exception of the record of his birth in the Salisbury town records, there is no mention of him either in town, church, or county records.

ANDREW GREELE, the emigrant ancestor, was an early settler in Salisbury, Mass. The exact date of his arrival there, from whence he came, or in what vessel, is unknown. The town of Salsbury, Mass., was granted in 1638, by the name of Merrimac, to be a plantation unto Simon Bradstreet and others. The year following it was incorporated by the name of Colchester, and in 1640 assumed, by direction of the General Court, the name of Salsbury. The first time the name of Andrew Greele appears on the town records is in 1640, when there appears the following record:—

16-9-1640. Granted unto Willi Sargeant six acres more or less for a planting lot lying near unto the mill between the millers lot & Andrew Grelies & so butting one end upon the mill river & ye other upon the north with the comon.

Andrew settled on a part which is now included in Seabrook, N. H., and thereupon built a tide mill for the grinding of corn, on Kane's River, contiguous to a rock-bound island in the marsh, where, in addition thereto, he built a sawmill about 1650. Tradition gives the date of the erection of the sawmill as 1650, but the following deed would seem to prove that it was erected and in operation previous to 1655 (Old Norfolk Co. Records, Vol. I, page 47):—

Bee it known unto all men by these presents yt I, Jno. Sanders of ye town of Newberry in ye Co. of Essex in N. RICHARD WELLS.

This mill was occupied and run by three distinct individuals, each by the name of Andrew Grele, for more than a century, and until 1747, when Andrew³ sold and conveyed his right to Jonathan Walton. Soon after completion of the mill, Andrew¹ removed to Haverhill, Mass.

About the year 1700 Andrew² received Robt. Smith as a partner in the mill business, and in 1701 they built a corduroy road, so called, about one quarter of a mile long from said island to the lower falls of said river, on which they constructed a set of new mills. About 1725 Smith sold his right to Joseph Dow, who sold the same to Samuel Walton Jan. 21, 1728-9.

Andrew³ sold his right and share in said mills, together with the homestead and certain other real estate which was of his father, to Jona. Walton, July 14, 1747, from which time the name of Greele disappeared from the records of Seabrook, N. H., for more than sixty years.

All of the children of the three successive generations of Andrew Greeles were born on the old homestead, which consisted of about three acres of land and two sets of buildings thereon.

The following extracts from the town records of Salsbury would indicate that Andrew took an active part in the business of the town:—

At a meeting of the prudential men 22 April, 1665 Andrew Greele, Capt Robert Pike and Wm Buswell were chosen to go upon perambulation with Hampton Men about the line which runs from Mr. Batchelders marked tree to Hampton rivers mouth and to mark out ye sd Bounds agreed upon between us.

There was considerable difficulty regarding the line of the bounds of Hampton, or virtually the line between New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and committees were several times appointed to lay out the lines, as will be seen by reference to the records of the Province of New Hampshire under date of May 27, 1652; May 28, 1653: Col. Records, Vol. III, page 379; May 14, 1656: Col. Records, Vol. IV, page 226; March 22, 1656: Col. Records, Vol. III, pages 108, 109; Oct. 23, 1657; Col. Records, Vol. IV, page 316.

At a meeting of Selectmen of Salsbury 18 Mch 1668-9, Will Buswell Andrew Greele and John Stevens were chosen a committee to meet with Hampton Men, the 29th of this present month, to join with them for the perfecting the line between the said towne running from Mr. Batchelders marked tree, unto Haverill bounds, and what they or any two of them shall conclude about the said line. we do hereby on the behalf of the said town of Salsbury ratify & confirm. 10 Apr. 1669 Capt Pike and Andrew Greele were chosen on behalf of the town to answer to a suit commenced against the said town by Edward Gove or otherwise to compound & agree with ye sd Gove concerning ye sd action.

17-10-1668-9 Andrew Greele allowed 7 days work as lot layer at one shilling per day.

At a general meeting, ordered Wm. Osgood, Andrew Greele, John Clough have full power to farm and lay out the cow common Mch. 13, 1670-1.

In 1677 he was appointed to view and seal leather.

As giving a little idea of his financial standing, the records say that Dec. 25, 1650, Wm. Webster made a tax rate for Salsbury, the whole amount of taxes being £30. The highest single tax was £1 3s., and Andrew's share was six shillings.

The inhabitants of Haverhill, about 1665, seem to have been much troubled for want of sufficient mill accommodations, as the town records of that date say "that taking into consideration that the corn mill now in Haverill is not sufficient to answer the towns end for to grind the towns corn" a committee was appointed to treat with John Osgood and Andrew Greele, the owners of the mill, "to know whether they will maintain a sufficient mill or mills for to answer the end of the town." In case the owners should refuse or neglect to do it, the committee were empowered "to agree with any other men that will build and maintain a sufficient mill or mills that will answer the end of the town for to grind the towns corn sufficiently." This action on the part of the town had the desired effect. An agreement was entered into with the committee by Bartholomew Heath and Andrew Greele to the following effect: "First to repair the mill that now is by Sept. next & if this mill proves insufficient to answer the towns end, then to build another by Sept. following; & so to keep & maintain from time to time a sufficient corn mill or mills, suitable for all sorts of grain that the inhabitants of Haverill shall have occasion to grind. And also to keep a sufficient skilful miller or millers such as the town shall approve of from time to time; and further do engage to provide good millstones, and convenient room for the laying of the bags, with sufficient housing with lock & key. And also we do engage not to grind for any other town or towns to the hindrance of the inhabitants of Haverill." In consideration of the above, the town agreed that Heath and Greele should "have so much privilege of the land in the road on both sides of the brook at the end of Michael Emerson's lot as may be convenient to set another mill on or any other place on the towns land. And also we do engage that no other man shall set up a mill or mills upon any land that is the towns with any order from the town." The agreement was dated Nov. 4, 1665.

The town still continued to be troubled about a corn mill, as will be seen by the following record of a special town meeting held Sept. 17, 1669: "This meeting being warned to take some order about a corn mill, the town being wholly destitute of any, Andrew Greele in whose hands the mill was, being about to carry on a mill at the East meadow river, upon the motion & desire of the town, did promise to take the frame down at the little river and bring it up and raise it at the place where the former mill was; (on Mill Brook) many of the inhabitants at the same time promising to allow him freely some help towards the taking the frame down & raising it again."

At the town meeting in 1675, Michael Emerson was chosen "to view and seal all leather" in the town. In 1677 he "complained," and Andrew Greele was joined with him. What he complained of is not known, but the probability is that the duties were not very pleasant, and that he adopted the modern remedy, division of responsibility.

At the town meeting in 1683 the subject of corn mill accommodations again came up, and we find the following: "The town being sensible of their great suffering for want of another mill to grind their corn, the mill of Andrew Greele's not being able to supply them or to grind their corn as it ought to be done did send to Andrew Greelee to treat with him & proposed to him the building of another who then did refuse to accept of the proposition and declared before the town that he knew there was a necessity for the town to have another corn mill & that he was not at all against their having of one set up, provided it be set upon any other brook or stream & not upon that brook which his mill stands upon."

In 1696 the town gave Samuel Currier and Joseph Greele permission to build a gristmill at East Meadow River, and allowed them ten acres of land for their accommodation and encouragement. They did not, however, build that year, but did soon after. It was located about one fourth of a mile from the mouth of the stream.

In 1669 the following vote was passed at town meeting: "The town, by a major vote, did make choice of Andrew Greele Sen. to keep the ferry at Haverill; provided he will agree and carry over the Inhabitants of the town, and the inhabitants of the town of Merrimack (Bradford) over against us, for three pence an horse, and a penny a man; and that he will carry all ministers over free that come upon visitation to us, and in particular Mr. Symmes, & that, if the inhabitants of the town over against us do come over to meet with us on the sabbath days they shall have the free use of the ferry boat, or boats, for the occasion without paying anything." They also stipulated that he should pay the former ferry man (Mr. Simonds) forty shillings. Mr. Symmes was the Rev. Zachariah Symmes, minister at Bradford, Mass.

While living at Haverhill he went bonds for his son Benjamin, who, dying, leaving his debts unpaid, his father was obliged to sell his property at Haverhill, and in March, 1691, he returned to Salisbury, and went to live with his son Andrew, and there he spent the remainder of his life. The following depositions are on file in the Essex County records:—

In the Essex Court Records Vol. L, page 49, there is a deposition made by Andrew Greele of Haverhill, Mass., dated March 7, 1691. In this deposition he says he is seventy-four years old or thereabouts. This is the only date to be found that gives an approximate date of his birth.

Neither the church nor town records of Salisbury offer any clue as to the name of Andrew's wife before marriage, beyond the fact that her name was Mary; but the following deed recorded in the Old Norfolk County Records prove conclusively that her name was Moyse. It has been published that her name was Goldwyer, and the inference was probably drawn from an old deed in Norfolk County Records, Vol. II, page 231, in which Andrew mentions his brother-in-law George Goldwyer.

George Goldwyer was not a brother of Andrew's wife, but he married Martha Moyse, a sister of Mary Moyse (Andrew's wife).

I, Joseph Moys of ye town of Salsbury in ye Co of Norfolk Mass. joiner, for divers good causes & considerations me thereunto moving but especially for and in consideration of ye natural love and affection which I have and doe bare unto my loving grandchildren Philip Grele & Andrew Grele both of the same town doe give & grant unto them my sd grandchildren all yt my sweepage lot of salt marsh now lying & being wth in ye bounds of Salsbury aforesd contg by estimation 2 A 16 r lying between the lots of Richard Goodale & John Severance. PHILIP GREELE took the oath of allegiance and fidelity before Captain Bradbury, military commander of Salisbury, Dec. 5, 1677. In 1690 his name is entered as Freeman. Records in the Register of Deeds show that he bought and sold many pieces of land in Salisbury, and that he also owned portions of small vessels which were built there. At a division of land May 18, 1681, he received Lot No. 37, containing twelve acres. He was surveyor of highways in 1682, 1683, and 1684, but aside from this does not seem to have filled town offices.

In the old cemetery at East Salisbury (near the road leading to the beach) are the gravestones of Philip and his wife. They are the oldest Greele gravestones in existence, and were, in 1893, in a good state of preservation, and perfectly legible. They read as follows:—

In the New Hampshire Provincial Papers is the following, taken from the original records:—

Council Records July 31, 1699 to Sept 1701

Henry Ambrose and Andrew Greeley, borderers upon the partition line of N. Hampr Mass and prisoners for refusing to pay their several taxes at Hampton prayed to be heard at the board, and being admitted, humbly moved for a release from the Imprisonmt

Ordered that they be discharged, first giving bonds with a surety to pay their several rates for which they are now imprisoned or deliver up their persons to the Governt when demanded. They gave bond accordingly as on file

This was caused, not because he would not pay his taxes, but because having once paid them in Massachusetts, he did not desire to pay again in New Hampshire, the trouble being caused by the disputed boundary line between Massachusetts and New Hampshire.

He took the oath of allegiance and fidelity before Captain Bradbury, military commander of Salisbury, Dec. 17, 1677. Was made a Freeman in 1690. By trade he was a miller.

He was highway surveyor in 1677, 1683-4, and appointed constable Jan. 7, 1678-9. He and Benjamin Stevens were ordered March 13, 1678-9, to clear the great neck, leading from the beach shore, of cattle.

At a division of land May 18, 1681, he received nine acres in lot No. 25.

At a general meeting of the town of Salisbury Nov. 9, 1725:—

The Humble petition of ye Subscriber to ye Town now meet Is that you would be pleased to grant me ye Sweepages of ye Island where ye old mill stood & also of ye Highway Down below ye gate by my house not hindering any man from having his horse go there while at work In ye meadow as formerly So doing youl oblige yours to serve

He was of Haverhill, Mass., in 1677, and took the oath of allegiance December 11th of that year. In 1694 the town offered four acres of land to anyone who would erect a mill, and Joseph Greele and Joseph Peasley accepted the offer. Mr. Greele, some years before, had partly finished a dam on the East Meadow Brook, but being unable to bear the expense, he was obliged to leave it. Greele and Peaslee having failed to build the mill, in 1696 the town gave Samuel Currier and Mr. Greele permission to build, and allowed them the use of ten acres of land for their accommodation and encouragement. But it seems that they did not make much progress that year, for Peter Patie applied to the town the next spring for the same privilege. The town refused Patie because they were already under obligations to Currier and Greele, who soon after erected the mill. It was located many years at a place known as Johnson's Mill, about one quarter of a mile from the mouth of the stream. It was the first mill erected anywhere on the stream. He sold his share of the mill about 1703 to John Currier, son of Samuel, his partner in the enterprise.

He remained in Haverhill as late as 1742, for Nov. 13, 1742, he and his wife Martha sold Thomas Cottle land in Haverhill, and in this deed he claims Haverhill as a residence. From Haverhill he removed to Hudson, N. H., where he and his wife both died, their deaths being entered on the town books as follows:—

Joseph Grele being entered in his ninety fifth year departed this life March ye 7th Anno Domini 1745. Martha Grele wife to Joseph Grele deceased departed this life February ye 21st Anno Domini 1757 and in the eighty seventh year of her age.

Tradition says that Moses, Jr., was accidentally killed by the discharge of a gun in the hands of his brother Seth, who did not know it was loaded. Seth was never known to handle a gun afterwards, and as long as he lived the report of one always brought terror to his feelings.

He moved from Haverhill to Hudson between 1745 and 1748. In 1761 he moved to Augusta, Me., taking his sons, Seth and Joseph, with him. He received from the Plymouth Co., October 9, 1765, grant of lot No. 24 at Cushnoc (now Augusta), containing two hundred and fifty acres. He and his son Seth occupied a log hut on what is now called the Arsenal lot. He removed first to Winthrop, Me., then in 1783 to Sandy River. He finally removed to Phillips, Me., and remained there until his death. He was appointed deer reeve at the first meeting of the town of Hallowell, held at Fort Western, May 22, 1771. The country was new, and no stated church meetings were held, but he being a religious man would read sermons to the people assembled. When he prayed he always stood up behind his chair, and also did so when the blessing was asked at the table. He was very fond of reading, singing, and playing on his bass viol, much to the enjoyment of the family. At the age of eighty-five he married the Widow Church, then sixty-five years of age, mother of Samuel Church, who married Polly Greeley, and they lived together ten years. His son Seth had a house close to his, and supplied all their wants.

He was a farmer and lived at North Yarmouth, Me. He was the first person killed in that vicinity at the time of the Indian war. As he was passing early one morning from one garrison house to another (about a mile), he was shot from an ambush. The number of Indians together at this time were supposed to be thirty at least. They had lined the fence by which he had to pass, and would probably have done him no injury at that time, had not his dog discovered them. This discovery frustrated their main design, which was to take the garrison to which he was going as soon as the men who belonged to it had gone out to their work. Philip was killed, but by his death the garrison were notified of the close proximity of the Indians and consequently were saved.

He was one of the petitioners for a new parish to be set off as East Kingston, in 1738.

March 10, 1739-40, the town records say: "Voted that liberty be given to Joseph Greeley, Jr., Jonathan Greeley and 6 others to build a pew in the front gallery in our meeting house behind the seats, from the end of the men's seats to the brace in the woman's gallery; they and their successors maintaining the glass in the windows, and having the said pew furnished at, by or upon the 1st day of Sept. next ensuing; and if they, for their privilege, cut out the brace in the men's gallery, they shall place strength spikes or Bolt on to the beam and then post a good strong knee of good wood."

Selectman at East Kingston many terms. Measurer of lumber 1761.

He was elected parish clerk of Brentwood, N. H., in March, 1865, and for the last time, as appears by the record of the town, March, 1782, which was probably about the time he removed to Gilmanton, N. H. In March meeting at Gilmanton, he was appointed one of a committee of three to lay out the broad highway near the meeting house into house lots, with a view to build up a village.

Colonel Jonathan kept a tavern, and there was the place where were assembled all meetings of any importance in the town. Four roads met in Kingston. One pair running north and south, the other east and west. On the latter, one fourth of a mile west of the corners, was the colonel's hotel. It stood on the north side of the road. In front, undulating fields sloped up to the top of the low wooded hills on the south, while to the north they gradually declined a mile away to the low bottom land. For fifty rods in front of the house the road is level, beginning a descent to the eastern valley by the great rock, and to the westward by the old burying place. On this road the old proprietors tried the speed of their horses after town meeting. West of the house was the orchard. The house itself was a large two-story building, eaves to the road, built in the style peculiar to those days. Two square rooms in front; the southeast one the barroom. A long dining hall or kitchen in the rear, and behind was a dairy or cook room. There was a long, unfinished hall upstairs over the dining room, filled with beds for lodgers; and in front two furnished chambers. The barroom and dining hall were ceiled with white pine boards, but the parlor and chamber walls were hung with rich paper. The house was built over many years ago, but the same materials were used; and not many years ago the doors, windows, and casings were the same as when Colonel Greeley, John Page, Dr. Bartlett, and Jeremy Webster first assembled at the proprietors meetings.

That Colonel Greeley's services were appreciated by his townsmen is shown by an entry in the town books under date of April 29, 1773: "Voted to give Col. Greeley for services done the proprietors, 125 A. of land in the N. E. corner of the township to begin at the said N. E. corner and to run S. on the line of said town 290 rods, thence W. 69 rods, thence N. 290 rods to the northerly line of the town, thence E. on said line 69 rods to said N. E. corner. Also voted to pay him for obtaining a new charter £6 14s."

In "Journal of House," published in New Hampshire records, it is recorded Jan. 4, 1755, "Muster rolls allowed Jonathan Greeley for himself and 20 troopers £60 1s. 8d."

He was one of the grantees of the town of Acworth, N. H., and one of the petitioners for the town of Warner, N. H. He was appointed selectman, 1764-6; assessor and auditor, 1763-71; moderator, 1764-6-7, 71-2; and surveyor, 1767 and 1772.

From New Hampshire Historical Collections, Vol. VII :—

When the tide of battle was rolling through the South and Gen. Greene was winning glory fighting with Gen. Cornwallis, John Balsh, who still rode post, brought the news that our great committee of safety were trying Col. Jonathan, one of the old proprietors, for practices inimical to the country. The citizens were greatly aroused by the intelligence, for Col. G. had been one of their best patrons. But when they learned that he had been found guilty and sentenced to give a bond for his behavior to Gen'l Folsom and confined to his own house and a certain portion of the highway 80 rods or so in length, limited by the flag staff on the E. and the burying ground on the W. they were almost as much excited as when they heard of Gen'l Stark's great victory at Bennington. But Col. G. did not long remain in confinement. He had good friends on the committee and they well remembered what a fine fellow he was, as mine host in old E. Kingston, and they soon let him off easy.

At one time he bought a little negro slave, two years old, of the name of Enos, and kept him until he was twenty-two years old, when he gave him his liberty. Enos married and had a son whom he named Samuel Greeley. He was one of the grantees of the town of Boyle, N. H., under date of Dec. 30, 1752, but as far as can be learned neither he nor his associates settled in the town or vicinity, owing to the then great trouble with the Indians. The territory was afterwards called Gilsum.

He was elected clerk in 1747 and again in 1749; and from that time to 1782 held the office every year excepting 1777, when his son Samuel was elected clerk. He was representative to the General Court to represent Nottingham, Dunstable and Litchfield in 1762, and probably at other times, but the election of representative was not recorded on the Hudson records after 1762. He was last taxed in Hudson Dec. 4, 1785, but after 1782 the tax was very small and he was probably taxed in those years as a non-resident.

The first gristmill which he built was at Barnes' Falls, lot 15, 4th range, being one of the lots drawn for mills. He was selectman of Hudson 1745-47 (1750-57), 1759-(61-63), 66 and 79. He was one of the original grantees of township No. 2 (now Wilton, N. H.) from the Masonian proprietors as per their grant dated June 16, 1749, and one of the early settlers in the town. It is said that he furnished the means for building the first gristmill in the town. He settled in the southwest part of the town, and the records, whenever speaking of him, call him Major. He signed the Association Test June 3, 1776.

Their first abiding place was a temporary camp, which had to answer their purpose until he could build a more substantial home. He built his first house on the intervalle, where it was surrounded by water to a considerable depth in the great freshet of 1785, when the family had to make their escape in a canoe in the darkness of the night. After this he built another log house on the upland. He put up the first frame barn in the upper part of the town about 1787, the boards of which were fastened on by pegs. He was a soldier in the French war, in which he was made practically a cripple through life by the lodgment of a ball in his leg, which was never extracted. He removed to Industry, Me., about 1796.

Aaron Greeley, at the age of twenty-one, commenced the first farm on what is known as Sugar Hill, Hopkinton, N. H. He packed on foot fifty miles, seeds, fruit, slips, etc., for starting a farm. He placed about the farm a stone wall, which was laid so deep in the ground and so well that it stood as firmly a few years ago as it ever did. Being a man of education for those days and a surveyor by trade, he was of great value to himself and neighbors in their new home. He was a member of the first legislature of New Hampshire, and one of the members who were locked in the court house for three days and nights to devise ways and means for the coming conflict with England (the Revolutionary War). During the Revolutionary War he was helping to protect homes from the Indians, while his wife was struggling in their home doing what she could, keeping fires burning on their hearth, spinning and weaving all night or whatever else she could think of to make a noise, that there might seem to be many others about the house. Sometimes the neighboring women would stay with her and they would have things to protect themselves against the Indians should they be molested.

He signed the Association Test at Hopkinton, N. H., in 1776. He removed from Kingston to Hopkinton in 1765. He was very prominent in politics, being the first representative of the town under the constitution in 1784. He was also representative in 1786; town clerk, 1792-1803; selectman, 1771-82-6-9 and 1791 to 1806; member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1791. He was publicly known as Captain Greeley. His death was very sudden. Whilst arranging his carriage to attend the funeral of his daughter Susanna, he fell in a fit and was carried into the house dead. His will, made Aug. 14, 1812, was probated at Nashua, N. H., September, 1813.

He enlisted in the Revolutionary army, and served about three months. He was in the Battle of Bunker Hill, and brought home a small stone which was in 1856 in possession of the family of the wife of E. Geo. Adams, of Newburyport. As an incident of the times and a relic of those days that tried men's souls, the following incident is recorded: When the postman came around to convey letters from the inhabitants of Kingston, as well as any little necessities from their friends to the soldiers in the service, Mrs. S. sent to her husband some green beans, with a piece of pork to cook with them, and some Indian meal to make him a pudding, while his little daughter, six years old, picked him a pint of berries to put in it, which he gratefully received, while the soldiers stood looking on with tears in their eyes, wishing they had a wife or children to send them a like present. Mr. S. was taken sick with the camp disease, and was forced to return home. When he returned to his home he was so haggard, pale, and changed that his daughter Hannah, in her fright at the singular looks of a stranger, as she deemed him, fled and hid herself behind a door.

He built the first gristmill in Wilton on the same place where one stood in 1839. The muster roll of the company who turned out as volunteers from Nottingham West at the time of the Battle of Lexington has the names of Samuel Greeley as captain and Joseph Greeley, private. In Wilton he was always called Captain Samuel and his father Major Samuel. In 1796 a cavalry company was formed at New Ipswich, N. H., and he was one of the commanders.

At a celebration in Wilton, in answer to the toast, "The Clergy of Wilton," Rev. N. Whitman said: "This day is the anniversary of an event which forty-one years ago filled this town with sudden and deep mourning. As Capt. Samuel Greeley was on his way to attend town meeting a decayed tree by the roadside, struck by a powerful gust of wind, fell and precipitated him from his horse to the ground, a corpse. By this providence his family and the whole community were called to mourn the loss of one who was highly respected and greatly beloved. Captain Greeley was a man of public spirit. On the memorable spot where he fell there now stands a beautiful marble monument. It is a monument of filial piety and parental worth. I offer the following sentiment: The Greeley monument,—it eloquently proclaims the glory of Wilton; the devotion of the parents to the best welfare of the children, and the gratitude of the children to venerable and beloved parents."

His tombstone is in the old graveyard at Wilton, and reads:—

memory of Capt
Samuel Greele
who was suddenly killed by the fall of a tree on the 25th of Sept. 1798 in the 46th year of his age
Suddenly and awful was the stroke
The thread of life asunder broke
Think reader can thy heart endure
A summons to a bar so pure.

He was a farmer, and fought at the Battle of Bunker Hill. Horace Greeley says of him in his Recollections of a Busy Life: "He was a most excellent man, though never a thrifty citizen—kind, mild, easy going, honest, and unambitious. He married young, and reared a family of thirteen children, of whom he who died youngest was thirty years old, and the majority lived to be seventy. A devoted, consistent, life-long Christian, originally of the Baptist, but ultimately of the Methodist persuasion, exemplary in deportment, and blameless in life. I do not believe he ever made an enemy, and while he never held an office, and his property at no time worth $2,000, I think few men were ever more sincerely esteemed than he by those who knew him."

Aaron was a school teacher in his early days; then he learned surveying, and was one of the government surveyors. He surveyed the division line between British America and the United States as far as the Lake of the Woods; then he was taken sick and died there in the wilderness. He employed Indians to carry his chain, so none but Indians knew of his resting place. He had before surveyed the division of many of the Western states. In the Congressional Documents reference is made to Greeley's survey as being the most correct.

In the War of 1812-15 his home was in Detroit. He went many times to carry dispatches to Washington. He then employed Indians to go with him, as he felt safer than with white men. He was gone at the time Detroit was surrendered to the British by Hull. He returned in the night, and knew the fort was surrendered; he had both whites and Indians with him as guards. He was seen from the fort, and was ordered to be fired upon; so he told his men to load and fire as fast as they could (there being seven of them), and as soon as they fired to drop down, as they would fire from the fort when they saw the flash from their guns. They kept it up till daylight appeared; then he told his men to run for their lives. The white men left him. The Indians refused to leave him, but he told them to go and save their own lives; so they went, and Aaron was taken prisoner and put aboard an English vessel; but his wife, being acquainted with the English general, begged his release. He said he would release him on condition that he would leave the British possessions and not return as long as the war lasted. She promised that he would not. He, with his family, went to his father's and remained as long as the war lasted; then he went back to Canada, and that was his home the remainder of his life.

From History of Detroit by S. Farmer, 1884:—

There seems to have been more or less discussion regarding the validity of the claims of territory of the district of Detroit, and by the act of 1807 the claims were to be surveyed under the direction of the surveyor general. The claims were surveyed by Aaron Greeley, and his map is referred to on page 158, Volume V, of the American State Papers in connection with the Abraham Cook claim. His manuscript map was afterwards engraved. On April 23, 1812 (U. S. Laws, Volume II, page 710) Congress confirmed the claims as surveyed by Aaron Greeley under direction of the surveyor general, making his survey authority even where it did not correspond with the description of the claims as confirmed by the commissioners. Subsequent to 1807 he seems to have been employed by the governor and judges as surveyor under the American Government by law of May 16, 1812.

From the "Annual Obituary Notices of Eminent Persons":—

The mother of Hon. Eliphalet Greely was Sarah Prince, a direct descendant of Rev. John Prince, rector of East Shefford, England, whose son, Elder John Prince, born in 1610, emigrated to this country in 1633, and settled in Hull, Mass. At the age of eighteen, Eliphalet entered upon a seafaring life. He began as an apprentice on board of one of his father's vessels and rose rapidly until, at the age of twenty-two years, he found himself in full command of a ship. He continued in this capacity about eleven years, during which time no disaster occurred to any vessel he commanded. Having accumulated sufficient property to justify the measure, he left the quarter deck for the counting room and warehouse, and successfully, for the remainder of his life, pursued commercial operations. In 1825 the Casco Bank elected him its president, which office he held nearly thirty years. In 1826 he was appointed by the governor as one of the state bank commissioners. In 1834 he represented Portland in the legislature; and in 1843 he was elected mayor of the city. This latter office he held six successive terms. He was a corporator and director of the Atlantic & St. Lawrence Railroad Company. He was treasurer of the Seaman's Friend Society and the Portland Manufacturing Company. In his will he provided that after the death of his widow the principal part of his estate should be applied to the founding and endowing of a high school in his native town, and a beautiful academy has been erected, called the Greely Institute.

This institution, thus endowed, is for the benefit of the youth of the town exclusively, who are to receive their tuition free of expense.

Samuel Greele graduated from Harvard College in 1802, fitting for college at the academy in New Ipswich; studied divinity with Rev. Jonathan French, of Andover, and preached for several years, but was never ordained as a minister over any society; was for some time a preceptor of an academy in Marblehead, and a teacher for several years in various places. He subsequently engaged in the business of manufacturing type, first under the firm name of Baker & Greele, and subsequently Greele & Willis. He retired from active business in 1861. Member of the board of aldermen, Boston, 1834-5-6; later a representative to the legislature. Deacon of the Federal Street Church under Drs. Channing and Gannett. In September, 1798, his father having died, leaving five small children, much of the care of the family devolved upon him, although very young himself. His success in after life was doubtless very much owing to the habits of industry and self-reliance then formed and the responsibilities then incurred. At New Ipswich Academy he qualified himself for teaching, and for several winters taught a school in his native town or vicinity. Having made considerable progress in classical studies, and still continuing their pursuit, at about the age of twenty-one he commenced the study of law in the office of Daniel Abbott, Esq., of Nashua. He soon perceived the importance of a more preparatory education, and wisely determined to suspend his professional studies and take a regular collegiate course. In 1809 he entered Dartmouth College. Soon after graduating he went to New York and opened a private classical school for boys at Manhattanville, and soon enjoyed the patronage and friendship of many distinguished families. In 1819 he went to New York in pursuit of mercantile employment. Here he became interested in a commission paper warehouse, the first of the kind established in New York. Within a year he purchased his partner's interest, and continued the business alone until 1827, when his brother-in-law, D. Elliot, became connected with the concern. In 1838 he withdrew from all active business. He was one of the founders of the American Art Union.

Zaccheus was one of the early pioneers in Erie County, Pa., and no name associated with the history of Wayne township or with any other township was ever brought into greater national prominence than that of Greeley. He commenced life as a farmer on a small scale in Vermont, but in consequence of embarrassment and loss of property, came to Erie County. In the year 1825, he found a home in the wilds of Erie County, whither his brothers Benjamin and Leonard had gone before him. He there purchased 200 acres, to which he afterwards added 150 more. He brought his family from New Hampshire in 1826, with the exception of Horace, who, being apprenticed at Poultney, Vt., did not accompany them.

Sacred to the memory of
Mrs. Anna Greele, consort of Shubal
Greele who departed this life Oct. 1, 1805, in the 27th year of her age.

While pious Grief bends o'er the hallowed tomb.

Removed from all the fears and cares of life,
Here rests the pleasant friend and faithful wife
Ennobled by the virtues of the mind
Constant to goodness and to death resigned.

When about eight years of age, Elam accompanied his parents to Maine, remaining there until his majority. In 1839, he turned his steps westward, making the journey to Prairie du Chien by wagon; thence to Reeds Landing by boat, and to Chippewa Falls on foot, a distance of 90 miles. The fall of the same year, in company with John McKusick, he made a trip to Prairie du Chien in a canoe, the distance being 300 miles. Subsequently he returned to St. Croix Falls, and, Oct. 26, 1843, he, John McKusick, Elias McKean and Colon F. Leach entered into an agreement to build a sawmill near the head of Lake St. Croix, and for carrying on the lumber business in all its branches. At this date no one thought of a town there; only a sawmill site was anticipated, and as they wanted a name, by proposal of McKusick, it was called Stillwater, by reason of the stillness of the water in the lake. April 3, 1844, the first log was sawed in this, the first mill erected there. This was the beginning of what has since become one of the greatest lumber manufacturing cities in the Northwest. Elam was the first postmaster of the place. Stillwater City Hospital was incorporated March 22, 1890, and Mrs. Greeley was one of the corporators. Elam was a member of the legislature in 1851 and 1856.

Dover, Me., was incorporated March 19, 1822, and he was appointed one of the selectmen. About 1822, he and Col. Carpenter built a saw-mill on the moor privilege, which was kept in operation until quite recently, the Greeleys being the last owners. In June, 1837, while taking the census of the Madawaska settlement, under authority of the County Commissioner for Penobscot Co., for the purpose of distributing the surplus revenue, he was arrested by direction of Sir John Harney, the provincial governor of New Brunswick, and confined in jail at Fredericton, charged with seditious conduct. Upon receiving information of the arrest, Gov. Fairfield on the 27th of the same month, caused a general order to be issued to the militia notifying them that "the soil of our State has been invaded" and one of our citizens taken and imprisoned in a neighboring British Province, and requiring them "to hold themselves in readiness to obey such orders as the security of our citizens and the honor of the state might require." In August, however, this speck of war was removed, upon application of the President of the United States, by the unconditional release of Mr. Greeley. He then completed the census. Maine Acts and Resolves of 1839 report "Resolve in favor of Ebenezer S. Greeley, approved April 12, 1838.

His early education was at the academies of Groton and Framingham, Mass., and he graduated from Harvard College in 1844, taking the degree of A. B. After graduating he taught school one winter on Cape Cod, Mass., and one season at Akron, Ohio. In 1845 he entered Rensselaer Institute, Troy, N. Y., where he studied surveying and engineering. After one year there, he engaged in the engineer corps of the Boston Water Works. At the completion of the water works he engaged in surveying for railroads, being employed some time on the Rutland, Vt., R. R., as assistant engineer. In 1852 he went to London; thence to Paris, where he studied and attended lectures on the construction of roads and bridges. Returning to the United States, he again engaged in land surveying. He removed to Chicago in 1853, and soon after formed a partnership under the firm name of Hanchett & Greeley, surveyors. In 1855, he was elected city surveyor, which office he held until 1863. He laid out the village of Hyde Park, located the Ogden Ditch, and surveyed the roads and ditches in Cicero, which roads are now pretty streets of Austin and Oak Park. He also laid out the Graceland and Mount Olivet Cemeteries. He introduced the Nicholson pavement into Chicago in 1858. He is a member of the Chicago Literary Club, President of the Harvard College Society, and also a member of a number of societies into which surveyors and engineers are organized in this country. He is now President of the Greeley-Howard Co., Surveyors, of which Morris L. Greeley is Vice-President, and Frederick Greeley, Treasurer.

Gen. Edwin Seneca Greeley, for many years a leader in the industrial development of New Haven, where he has achieved great success, becoming president of the Yale National Bank, stands in the front rank of New Haven's citizen soldiers.

Born May 20, 1832, in Nashua, N. H., General Greeley is the son of Seneca and Priscilla (Fields) Greeley; the grandson of Joseph Greeley, a patriot soldier of the Revolution, and the grandson of Isaac Fields, one of the early settlers of Merrimack, N. H. Joseph Greeley was own cousin to Zaccheus Greeley, the father of Horace Greeley, the founder of the New York Tribune.

In early boyhood, through financial misfortune that came to General Greeley's parents, he was thrown upon his own resources, and after receiving a common school education, he commenced to make his own living. He was first employed in a factory, and afterwards learned the machinist trade, working principally on building of locomotives, to which occupation he applied himself until the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion. He was in New Haven in the exciting years preceding the civil war, and all of his sympathies were with the Union. When the clash of arms came, he was among the first to respond to the call for troops for three years' service, carrying out to its logical results his long and earnest championing of the cause of liberty and progress.

He enlisted Aug. 31, 1861, and in company with E. D. S. Goodyear, of North Haven, he raised a full company of men, with Mr. Goodyear as captain, and himself as first lieutenant. They were assigned to the Tenth Regiment, Connecticut Volunteers. This regiment was mustered into the United States service Oct. 2, 1861, and was almost immediately sent South to join in what is known in history as "Burnside's Expedition." It participated in its first battle at Roanoke Island in February, 1862, where it charged the Rebel works and captured most of the garrison. The next engagement in which his regiment participated was at the battle at Newbern, N. C., where Lieutenant Greeley commanded his company, and immediately after the battle was promoted to captain of Company A.

Captain Greeley marched with his company on the famous Goldsboro expedition, participating in the battle of Kinston, charging and capturing the enemy's works, where the regiment lost one hundred and six officers and men in less than thirty minutes. The Tenth fought also at Whitehall and Goldsboro. On January 1st the regiment was transferred to the Department of the South, stationed at Hilton Head, S. C. After this, Captain Greeley received his commission as Major and commanded the regiment in the siege of Charleston, the colonel being away on detached service, and the lieutenant colonel receiving a wound which caused the amputation of his right leg, and totally disabling him. The siege of the forts defending the City of Charleston proved to be a succession of conflicts for about four months, and was of the most violent and dangerous sort. During the siege, desperate assaults were made on Forts Wagner and Gregg on Morris Island. After the capture of Forts Wagner and Gregg, and reduction of Fort Sumpter, Major Greeley was ordered to St. Augustine, Fla., to recruit his regiment. The long and arduous duties in the siege on Morris Island had made sad havoc in the ranks of both officers and men. The change in the climate, and relief from arduous duties, enabled both the officers and the men to be restored to health.

In the spring of 1864, Major Greeley was ordered North with his veterans, whose term of service had expired. About three hundred men re-enlisted. After a short furlough they joined the regiment, which, coming up from the South, was attached to General Butler's Army of the James, and was assigned to the Tenth Army Corps, commanded by General Gilmore. During the campaign of 1864, Major Greeley was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel.

The operations of the Army of the James were of such magnitude, and so varied, that only brief mention can be made of the part taken by Colonel Greeley and his regiment. They took part in all the engagements in which the 10th, 18th, and 24th Corps were engaged, from the landing at City Point, Va., May, 1864, until the surrender of Lee's army in March, 1865.

The gallant Tenth was engaged in continuous and arduous service during May, 1864, particularly against the railroad and Richmond, from the South. After four days of continuous fighting, the Tenth acted as rear guard from the battlefield of Duryea's Bluff, and received the warmest encomiums from the commanding general for its behavior under all circumstances and in all situations.

Major Greeley won warm praise for his gallant behavior on the night of June 15, 1864. He had charge of the picket line on the right, when it appeared that large masses of troops were in motion in front of him. At first an attack was feared, but he soon discovered that the enemy was withdrawing. At once he put his skirmish line in motion, and quickly captured the entire main line of the enemy's earthworks and fifteen field pieces. Here was gained an important position, and the reputation of Major Greeley greatly increased.

The Tenth was sent to assist in the operations before Petersburg, where its picket lines held the advanced trenches at the left of the entrance to the famous mine under Cemetery Hill. For a month or more it was constantly under fire, and a rifle ball struck the cot on which Major Greeley was sleeping, while an exploding shell left a fragment in his tent pole. On August 29, 1864, he was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel of the regiment. The month of September was occupied by frequent assaults, and in October the regiment participated in a most desperate assault on an almost impregnable position, where in a few minutes it lost nearly one half its effective force.

On October 18th, Lieutenant-Colonel Greeley was promoted to the command of the regiment, which at that time consisted of two line officers and three hundred and fifty men. In November the regiment was sent to New York to guard against an anticipated election riot, and on his return to the front Colonel Greeley reorganized his regiment, receiving an assignment of five hundred men, some few being volunteers, but the greater part being bounty-jumpers, who planned to desert at the first opportunity. Out of this unpromising material Colonel Greeley made good soldiers.

In March, 1865, anticipating some quiet weeks before the opening of the spring campaign, and wearied by his incessant activities, Colonel Greeley obtained a short furlough, and while he was North was chagrined to learn that the forward movement had already begun, and that Fort Gregg, the key to the Rebel front, was taken by a desperate charge of his regiment, the famous Tenth. Hastening back to rejoin his command, which thus showed the effect of the patient work he had given it for months, he found the transportation service in utter confusion. At Washington he was given command of a large number of men to be led to the front. Before he could join in the fray, being but one day's march away, he was delighted with the news of the surrender of General Lee. Coming back to Richmond with his own regiment, he was assigned to the command of a brigade, and was breveted Brigadier General for gallant and meritorious services in the war, his commission bearing date March 3, 1865. He was mustered out August 25, 1865, and reached Hartford with his command September 2, 1865, at which time they were discharged from service.

In General Greeley's fine residence he has a "den" containing many valuable and historical relics. He has his uniform of Captain, Colonel and General used in service; also all his swords including two captured from Confederate officers, and the one presented to him by Thomas R. Trowbridge, which was sunk on board ship, off Charleston Harbor, but finally recovered and returned to Mr. Trowbridge, who again presented it to General Greeley at a reception given by Mr. Trowbridge in his honor upon the General's return from the war.

Upon returning home, General Greeley marked his return to civil life by entering into a partnership with L. G. Tillotson of New York to manufacture and import railway and telegraph supplies and machinery, under the firm name of L. G. Tillotson & Co. This business was very successful, and when Mr. Tillotson died in 1885, his interests were transferred to General Greeley, the firm becoming E. S. Greeley & Co. This firm carried at one time a larger assortment of supplies in their line than any other house in the United States, and their trade extended all over the world.

General Greeley's company strung the wires for opening the World's Fair at Chicago, and he has in his den the gold telegraph key touched by President Cleveland in opening the Fair.

General Greeley, a forceful and energetic man, has pushed steadily to the front. He took an active interest at a very early day in electric lighting, and assisted in the organization of the New Haven Electric Light Co., of which he became president, and has been a director and interested in many of the corporations of New Haven. He has been interested in banking institutions, and at this time is President of the Yale National Bank. Avoiding, rather than seeking political preferment, it was a sacrifice to a sense of duty that compelled him to accept as alderman from the Eighth Ward, New Haven, and he has served the city most efficiently in various capacities and relations. He is closely connected with the Church of the Redeemer.

General Greeley is connected with various societies. He is an active member of Admiral Foote Post, G. A. R., New Haven; the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, New York State Commandery; he is prominently connected with the Sons of the American Revolution, where he has held high positions, and is now President General of the National Society. He is also a member of the Army and Navy Club of New York, and the Army and Navy Club of Connecticut, having served as president of the latter. He is a Freemason, with which order he became affiliated in 1858. At one time he was president of the Congregational Club, and for three years held the same office in the Union League. He has long been an active member in the New Haven Colony Historical Society.

General Greeley is also a trustee of the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane, and has served as a member of the Board of Charities and Correction for two years.

General Greeley is a man of high character, both enterprising and public spirited, and his fine residence stands as a noble monument to his enterprise. His money is used by him with a generous hand, and he is a liberal benefactor of public and needy institutions, among them being the New Haven Orphan Asylum, the Y. M. C. A., Grace Hospital, of which he has been vice president since its organization, and the Tillotson College at Austin, Texas, the Board of Associated Charities, City Missions and Welcome Hall Mission.

On Feb. 20, 1856, General Greeley married Miss Elizabeth Anthony Corey, of Taunton, Mass. Their only child died in 1860. They have an adopted daughter.

General Greeley is most deeply interested in the growth and advancement of the work of the Sons of the American Revolution, for which he has done efficient service. The success of his administration as President General is already assured by the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the Society since he assumed office May 1, 1903.

There Miss Arminda Greeley opened a school in a little log building upon her father's farm, and taught a dozen or more pupils, many of whom were older than herself. She was tall, well developed, and had an air of dignity, enabling her at that early age to enforce respect and obedience. She taught the usual course of a pioneer school, and in addition, sewing and knitting. For this service she received seventy-five cents a week, and "boarded 'round."

The following sketch was kindly contributed by Mrs. Clendenin, daughter of the late Horace Greeley:—

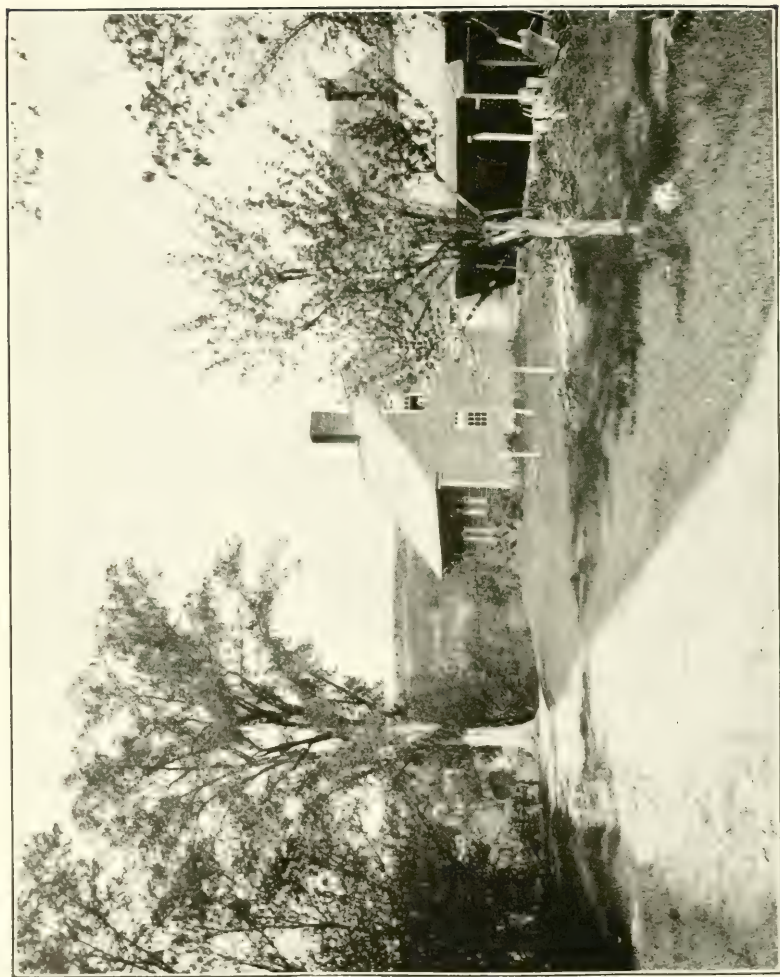

In a little story and a half house there was born in Amherst, N. H., in 1811, a delicate boy; he was heir to so little, his very name of Horace Greeley had been worn before by an older brother who had died. The little house was built in the old-fashioned way of great open fires and hewn timbers; so that it still nestles beside the roadway dignified by a tall elm tree, and looking out through its small panes of glass over miles and miles of glorious rolling country, the sweet air perfumed by the native pine trees; while many a pretentious modern building has fallen into decay before its time.

The mother kept her boy close beside her as she spun, and told him beautiful stories and bits of history and fairy lore, and sang sweet Scottish ballads till his mind was kindled and he longed to read himself. When he was about three years old he read The Book standing at his mother's knee, the letters being upside down to him. This was considered quite wonderful to others; afterwards he was able to read with the book held in any way. He was a favorite with the elder boys, who would often carry him to school on their shoulders when the drifts were too deep for his little feet. It was not long before he had borrowed and read every book for miles around, lying before the open fire to read them by night. Only a few months of schooling was he ever able to have. His father was too kindhearted for his own success, and between helping his neighbors and entertaining relatives, and being a poor manager, his fortunes declined to bankruptcy in 1820. Horace's love for books led him to choose work which had to do with the making of books, so when he was only eleven he persuaded his father to go with him to Whitehall, N. Y., to be bound out as an apprentice, but he was rejected as being too young. Finally he was taken in East Poughkeepsie, Vt., to work on the Northern Spectator, and before long he was trusted to condense and write out foreign news, besides doing the laborious work of a printer in those days. It was not long before the shy, awkward boy began to make friends, some of whom lasted a lifetime. Here he had the advantage of a public library; here he joined a debating society and spoke before the leading citizens of the town, and although he did not promise to be a great orator they soon began to rely upon his facts and the earnestness and truthfulness of his statements. His father, mother, three sisters, and an elder brother had gone out as pioneers to Corry, Pa., where in time the forests were driven back from the log cabin, and some three hundred acres cleared. But the mother had lost with the old home the thoughtful, loving son, and those who saw her in the new home said they never saw the old smile again; but she was ever brave and patient and strong, waiting in the years to come for the visits of the son whose fortunes were the joy and glory of her life.

It was shortly after Horace's apprenticeship that his family had to move out West, and it was one of the hardest things he ever did to be true to his contract and remain behind. Four years afterwards the Northern Spectator was discontinued, and Horace set out to visit his parents some two hundred miles away. It is characteristic of his generosity that he left the savings of years with his father, and after some time arrived in New York City, Aug. 18, 1831, with only ten dollars in his pocket. This small sum was almost gone when he at last found a place to work on a microscopic edition of the New Testament. March 22, 1834, appeared the first number of the New Yorker, a paper that brought its editor reputation but not fortune; this, in 1841, was merged into the Weekly Tribune. In the gloom of the funeral procession of President Harrison, in 1841, the Tribune first appeared,—that paper that was his life work, which had an influence over so many lives who looked to its editor as a man who could be loved and trusted to the uttermost. As editor of the Tribune he could dictate to presidents; he could give a hearing to the oppressed from other nations; he could direct a national policy magnanimous yet fearless. His loving heart almost bore him down when Lincoln was assassinated; not only for the love of the man, but because his prophetic eye could see the fountain of bitterness it would bring forth, and the gulf of prejudice it would create between the North and South.

Later on, when the war was over, he was able to bear witness to the spirit of justice that should guide a great nation by going South and signing Jefferson Davis' bail bond. The president of the Confederate states had been taken as a prisoner of war, and after we had shaken hands and buried the hatchet we proceeded to dig it up and try the whole South in the person of its erring head. For this Horace Greeley was met with a cry of execration from the whole North, and financial ruin stared him in the face; and among the personal insults was an attempt to turn him out of one of the headquarters of Republicanism, the Union League Club. Just as the Tribune was in the zenith of its power for good, having waged a war on Tweed, and having, with the help of the press, driven him from his spoils: when the Tribune was adorned by men like Ripley, Bayard Taylor, Smalley, John Hay and Whitelaw Reid, there came a call from what promised to be the most independent and fearless part of the Republican party to carry its banner to the White House. Had he succeeded who can tell what the heart that loved and labored for and with the laboring man might not have done, how the brain that was in active sympathy with the North might not have won the trust and love of the South by its wise and considerate policy. God ordered otherwise, and after receiving the endorsement of the whole Democratic party, who loyally followed the best man they thought they could elect, even though he had been their life-long antagonist, uniting men of such diverse interests and prejudices, Horace Greeley made a most memorable canvass. He traveled thousands of miles, speaking night after night to audiences as varied in their feelings as the people of the polar regions are from the equator, and by his splendid brain and loving, loyal heart winning their hearts till it looked as if a wave of popularity would carry the little boy of the New Hampshire hills to the Capitol; but the great cloud of financial difficulties began to gather which afterwards broke in the panic and disaster of Black Friday (1872); and the machine politician got to work, and the people who have been known before to cry "Hosanna" and alter their cry afterward, draw back. In his own home the bravest of wives began to sicken unto death; and the loving husband for six weeks sat by her side, as he saw in memory the beautiful New England girl who had given him her hand and had toiled through poverty and illness and the loss of five beloved children, so courageous, so self-denying, so forgetful of self in her many years of suffering. No wonder the heart and brain of Horace Greeley were overstrained, and ten days after he laid to rest "my own, my darling Mary," his strength failed and inflammation of the brain developed. After ten days of acute suffering he fell, but not in vain. Never again has so bitter and personal a campaign been made. Over his dead body the North and South met in heart to mourn "Honest Horace Greeley," and after thirty years his name and words are familiar and beloved by a younger generation, who venerate the man "my father loved."

Mr. Greeley's summary of his life:—

"My life has been busy and anxious, but not joyless. Whether it shall be prolonged few or more years, I am grateful that it has endured so long, and that it has abounded in opportunities for good not wholly unimproved, and in experiences of the nobler as well as the baser impulses of human nature. I have been spared to see the end of giant wrongs which I once deemed invincible in this country, and to note the silent upspringing and growth of principles and influences which I hail as destined to root out some of the most flagrant and pervading evils that yet remain. I realize that each generation is destined to confront new and peculiar perils, to wrestle with temptations and seductions unknown to its predecessors; yet I trust that progress is a general law of our being, and that the ills and woes of the future shall be less crushing than those of the bloody and hateful past. So, looking calmly yet humbly for that close of my mortal career which cannot be far distant, I reverently thank God for the blessings vouchsafed me in the past; and, with an awe that is not fear, and a consciousness of demerit which does not exclude hope, await the opening before my steps of the gates of the Eternal World."

Nathan B. Greeley was a very eccentric old gentleman, but was the soul of honor. His interest in public affairs never led him beyond his township, and while he was at all times interested in good roads and good schools, he was seldom seen at the county seat. Mr. Greeley was not one of the most successful farmers in Erie County, but he was quite prosperous as a stock grower.

Adolphus Washington Greeley: Living from birth in Newburyport, Mass., graduating from the high school in 1860, the following year enlisting, after two rejections, at the age of seventeen as a private in Company B, 19th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. He served in sixteen engagements and was twice wounded. At the battle of the crossing of the Rappahannock, Fredericksburg, Dec. 11, 1862, he was promoted to first sergeant of his company for good conduct as one of the "forlorn hope." He received a commission in the 54th Massachusetts Volunteers, but was unable to join that organization, as he was ordered by the War Department to Ullmann's brigade, in which he served until the end of the war, attaining the rank of captain and brevet major of volunteers. Appointed by the President as a second lieutenant in the 36th United States Infantry, he was promoted to a captaincy in the 5th United States Cavalry, and being the senior Signal Officer attached to the Signal Corps was appointed Chief Signal Officer of the Army with rank of brigadier general, Feb. 17, 1887.

Distinguished in several directions he is probably best known as the commanding officer of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition of 1881-4, when his party attained the highest north (83°24' N. 41° W.), discovering detached land to the north of Greenland, and also crossing Grinnell Land to the western Arctic Ocean. Through failure of the Government relief expeditions, nineteen of the twenty-five men composing the party perished, but the entire scientific records of the expedition were brought safely back under the most trying and dangerous conditions. The magnetic, tidal, and meteorological observations were published by the Government in two large quarto volumes and form valuable contributions to physical sciences.

GENERAL A. W. GREELY.

Apart from this report, General Greely has written many other scientific works and professional papers. Among the most extensive works published have been Three Years of Arctic Service, American Weather, Hand Book of Arctic Discoveries, and American Explorers and Travelers.

As a subordinate in the Signal Corps his principal duties were the establishment of the Danger Flood Lines of the Ohio, Mississippi and other great rivers of the United States; the construction of 1,200 miles of military telegraph lines in Texas and the Mexican frontier, and of 600 miles of line in the Missouri and Yellowstone Valleys, through uninhabited regions infested by hostile Indians. Under his supervision as Chief Signal Officer of the Army there were constructed, operated and maintained during the Spanish American War the following military telegraph lines: Porto Rico, 800 miles; Cuba, 3,000 miles; the Philippine Islands, 10,200 miles. In China the Signal Corps carried the first telegraph line into Peking seven days ahead of that of any other nation. In connection with Alaska, General Greely has constructed under very adverse conditions, a telegraph system of nearly 4,000 miles, consisting of submarine cables, land lines and wireless telegraphy, the last named covering a stretch of 107 miles, which at the time of its installation was the longest commercial system regularly working in the world.

General Greely has represented the United States abroad on several occasions: at the Seventh International Geographic Congress at Berlin, in 1900, where he was one of the vice presidents; at the International Telegraph Conference, London in 1903; and in the Wireless Telegraph Conferences, Berlin, in 1903 and in 1904. He received the unusual distinction of the thanks of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, was voted the Founders gold medal by the Royal Geographical Society, and the Roquette medal of the Paris Geographical Society. He has also received distinguished honors in the way of honorary membership in the Royal Scottish Geographical Society, the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and in many other well-known associations.

The vote of thanks May 6, 1886, referred to above, read as follows:—

“As a tribute to his patriotism, courage and loyalty, as shown in his services as a volunteer soldier; to his ability, energy and zeal as a regular officer of the United States Army, in dealing practically as well as theoretically, both here and in the High North, with the varied scientific questions arising in connection with the Civil Service; to his prudence, patience and enterprise as an explorer in solving geographical problems involving the progress of mankind in science and civilization, and in thus advancing the name of America to the foremost rank in scientific Arctic research; and finally to his capacity and intrepidity as a commander in maintaining the courage, discipline and unity of his command under most untoward, prolonged and desperate circumstance.”

Mrs. Greely is descended maternally from Rutgers Jacobsen, Albany, 1636, the founder of the Rutgers family, and paternally from John Nesmith, Londonderry, N. H., 1719.

Mrs. Dow received the rudiments of her education in Dover. At an early age her parents removed to Boston, and it was there she got the larger part of her schooling. When seventeen she graduated with high honors from the Charlestown High School. For some years she was a successful assistant principal of the Rochester High School, and later proceeded to St. Louis, Mo., where, for three years, she was instructor in French and German in a well-known female academy there. In January, 1888, she was elected president of the Dover, N. H., Railroad. She is the first woman in the Union or in the civilized world to hold such a position. The road, before she took charge of it, had not been a paying enterprise, the patrons finding fault with the accommodations, and the stockholders with the receipts. Under her management, in one year, the condition of the road was improved, the fares reduced, the wages of the employees increased, and a dividend of eleven per cent declared.

As a boy Caleb W. Loring went to the Boston Public Latin School and from there to Harvard College, where he was graduated in 1839, standing fourth in his class. He then went to the Harvard Law School, graduating there in 1842, and was admitted to the Bar of the Commonwealth in the same year, and later to the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. He began the practice of law in the office of his father, Charles G. Loring, with whom he afterward became a partner. The firm's offices were up one flight at 39 Court Street, opposite the old Court House in Court Street, with sunny, old-fashioned rooms in the front of the building. About 1874 he moved to Pemberton Square, and later to 22 Congress Street. When he was first at the bar he was engaged in general practice, including the trial of cases in court, but later he devoted himself to the care of property and to chamber practice.

Besides a legal bent of mind, he was well equipped in financial affairs, having much property in his care as trustee. He was a director of many manufacturing corporations and for many years was president of the Plymouth Cordage Co., which was indebted to his wisdom and courage in the successful conduct of its affairs.

He was intensely fond of the country and had a wide knowledge of trees and plants. In 1852 he built a house in that part of Beverly now known as Pride's Crossing, where he made his home in summer, and after 1875 both in summer and in winter. He was a genial man, with the charm of courtesy of an old-fashioned gentleman. For many years, in the earlier part of his life, it was his habit to ride in the saddle every day in the winter, while in summer his country place and sailing on the ocean gave him ample occupation out of doors. With his father and Mr. Francis Amory, he was one of the first to own a yacht large enough to cruise on, and among other cruises went around Cape Cod and to Mt. Desert in the sixties.

After he lived at Beverly the year round, he devoted his winter afternoons to felling trees. For some ten years before his death, his health was not good and he went to the South in the winter. He died at Camden, S. C., where he was for this reason, on Jan. 27, 1896, greatly beloved by those he left behind him.

Charles G. Loring graduated from Harvard College in 1848, obtaining in 1851 the degree of A. M. The following year he was a student at the Scientific School at Cambridge. Late in 1861, he enlisted for the Civil War, intending to go as a private, but was appointed on the staff of General Burnside, with rank of First Lieutenant. Feb. 3, 1862, appointed Ass't Quartermaster on the staff, with the rank of Captain. July 2, 1862, he was appointed Ass't Inspector General of the 9th Army Corps, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. He remained with the 9th Corps in this capacity during the entire term of service to the end of the war. He received two brevets both dated Aug. 1, 1864; one to the rank of Colonel "for gallant and meritorious services during the campaign in East Tennessee, and at the siege of Knoxville;" the second to the rank of Brigadier General "for gallant and meritorious services at the battles of the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, and Bethesda Church, and during the operations before Petersburg, Va." July 17, 1865, he received a third brevet to the rank of Major General of Volunteers "for gallant and meritorious services during the war." He was mustered out of the service Aug. 10, 1865.

Among the first gifts offered to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston in 1872, was a collection of antiquities from Egypt, now known as the Way Collection. Doubtless there was at the time no one in Boston as well fitted for making this collection available as was General Loring, whose studies of, and frequent visits to Egypt, had given him a rarely attained knowledge of the history, religion, and arts of that country, and he put this knowledge as well as his time at the disposal of the Trustees for the purpose of the proper classification and arrangement of this collection, and in recognition of these services, he was unanimously elected a Trustee March 20, 1873. He was given general charge of the Museum as Curator, Jan. 21, 1876; his title changed to Director, April 21, 1887; resigned Feb. 27, 1902; appointed Director Emeritus, April 17, 1902.

Hancock, under the firm name of Hancock & Greely. For nineteen years the firm carried on an extensive business as carpenters and builders, and during this time were concerned in many important building enterprises. In the year following the Boston fire of 1872 they erected sixty-three stores in the burned district. They also built the Brighton abattoir, Thayer Hall at Harvard College, the Old Ladies' Home at Charlestown, and the Narragansett Hotel at Providence, costing $600,000. In 1878 the firm dissolved and Mr. Greely

Later he made a specialty of the study of chemistry at the Lawrence Scientific School. He then returned to Portland and associated himself with his father in the development of the Portland Sugar Co. After some years he enlarged his business operations by becoming a founder of the West India house of Churchill, Brown & Mason. After the dissolution of this firm the firm of J. B. Brown & Sons established a banking business, and he assumed the general direction of its affairs. He was a man of unusual quickness and accuracy of judgment in financial affairs, and a wise and conservative adviser. He was closely allied with a large number of the principal business enterprises in Portland and at the time of his death was president or vice president of many of them. He founded a scholarship at Bowdoin College for excellence in extemporaneous English composition, and for a long period was president of the Bowdoin Alumni Association of Portland.

John M. Brown entered Bowdoin College in the class of 1860, and was elected class orator at graduation. He studied law, but was not admitted to the bar, having Aug. 29, 1862, been commissioned First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Twentieth Reg't. Maine Vol. Inf. This regiment was ordered at once to the front, and participated in the battles of Antietam and Fredericksburg. He was then detailed for staff duty and served in the battle of Chancellorsville, was honorably mentioned in the official reports, and appointed Acting Assistant Adjutant General on General Ayres' staff.

June 23, 1863, Mr. Brown was appointed by President Lincoln, Ass't Adj. General of Volunteers, with rank of Captain, and ordered to report to General Ames. In his report of the operations of his troops at Gettysburg, General Ames says: "Capt. J. M. Brown, my Assistant Adjutant General, rendered most valuable services during the three days' fighting; with great coolness and energy he ably seconded my efforts in repelling the assault made by the enemy on the evening of the 2d."

On March 26, 1864, Captain Brown was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel of the Thirty-second Regiment, Maine Volunteers, and reported at once at Augusta. A portion of the regiment had already been sent to the front, and he followed with the remaining companies. Colonel Wentworth being temporarily disabled, he marched the command to the North Anna River; commanded at Totopotomoy and Cold Harbor and the preliminary movements at Petersburg, where, June 12th, he was severely wounded. Sept. 23, 1864, the surgeons having decided that he could not return to duty, he was discharged "on account of physical disability from wounds received in action." He was brevetted Colonel "for distinguished gallantry in the battle of Gettysburg, Pa.," and again "for gallant and meritorious services in the battles before Petersburg, Va.," and also Brigadier General "for gallant and meritorious services during the war."

Shortly after leaving the service he entered the firm of J. B. Brown & Sons, managers and owners of the Portland Sugar Company. In 1867 he was appointed Commissioner to the Paris Exposition.

General Brown was much interested in the re-organization of the volunteer militia of the state during the administration of General Chamberlain. He served on the staff as Aide-de-camp and Inspector General, and later as Ass't Adj. General, Division Inspector, Colonel of the First Regt., and Brigadier General, commanding First Brigade. In 1893 he was appointed by Governor Cleaves as one of the commission for revising the military code.

General Brown was one of the charter members of the Maine Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and is one of the Council-in-chief of the Order for the United States. He was one of the founders and the first President of the Portland Army and Navy Union. He was the President of the Soldiers and Sailors Monument Association, and delivered the address on the occasion of the surrender of the monument to the city. He was for twenty-five years an Overseer of Bowdoin College; six years President of the Board, and Trustee three years. He is one of the Governing Committee of the Maine Historical Society.

The grandson and namesake of Horace Greeley is a practicing physician in Brooklyn, having been graduated this year from the Long Island College Hospital with such honors as are rarely attained by students in any institution.

Before the death of the elder Greeley he requested his daughter Ida to allow her son, should she have one, to bear his name. The boy was named simply Horace Greeley, and has always borne the name.

He was first honor man in the Long Island College Hospital this year, and won the Chauncey L. Mitchell prize. In addition to this he led the honor list of the best fifteen members of the graduating class. He received a special diploma for excellence in physical diagnosis, and his license to practice bears the purple seal, indicating perfection in all branches.
